Colours

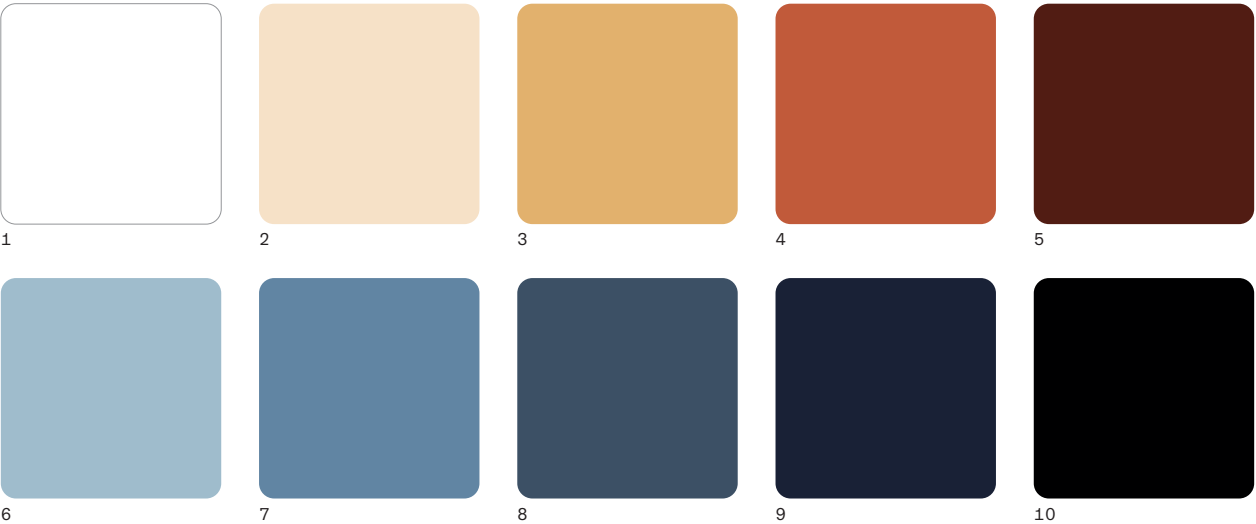

To ensure the consistency of the brand, only use the colours listed below. Use RGB values for any digital application. Use CMYK values for any printed materials. Use Pantone values for any offset printed application that allows for spot colours. Use Hex values for any web application.

Contact us at studio@zaina.international if you have any questions about this document, or if you need any other matching colour values not specified in this list.

In addition, we have provided ASE files containing the colour swatches for each colour space. On Adobe programs, access these files through the Swatches panel: select the menu button to the top right of the Swatches panel and click on “Load Swatches” (for InDesign) / “Open Swatch Library > Other Library” (for Illustrator) / “Import Swatches” (for Photoshop) to open the ASE file according to the required usage.

Patterns

A series of graphic patterns derived from the brand’s symbol may be used as supporting elements to create distinctive layouts. For visual consistency, use only the supplied brand patterns. Patterns may be scaled as needed but must always fill a frame (clipping mask), with proportions adapted to the artwork. Prioritise subtle, tone-on-tone colour combinations and ensure patterns remain discreet, secondary background elements within the layout.

Contact us at studio@zaina.international if you have any questions about this document, or if you need any other pattern or colour combinations not included in this list.

Do not distort, rotate, recreate, combine different patterns, or apply inconsistent colours. Avoid scaling that makes details illegible or overly prominent, and ensure patterns do not distract from the primary content.
